Homeschooling since 1984

Securing Your Family's Homeschooling Future

Homeschoolers need encouragement, support, and information

- Getting started
- Choosing a curriculum
- Complying with the law
- Keeping records
- Homeschooling for high school
- Dealing with public officials
- And more

WPA provides encouragement, support, and information

- Homeschooling In Wisconsin, a 286-page handbook, now in its 6th edition
- Annual state-wide conference each spring (in 2008, May 2–3 in Oshkosh)
- WPA voice mail, (608) 283-3131, and Regional Coordinators
- Quarterly newsletters and special bulletins

Homeschoolers need the freedom to homeschool the way we choose, not the way the government tells us to

- Without interference from local school districts or the Department of Public Instruction (DPI)
- Without state-mandated tests
- Without filing progress reports
- Without other requirements many states have

Homeschoolers working together through WPA secured Wisconsin's good homeschooling law in 1984. We have maintained it ever since, despite numerous challenges. Working through WPA, homeschoolers:

- Answer questions about homeschooling
- Watch for developments that would undermine our freedoms
- Track and oppose harmful legislation
- Minimize problems in local communities

This work must continue if we are going to maintain our homeschooling freedoms.
You can do your part by joining WPA and its work.

Become a member, receive the newsletter, and save $7 on the handbook and $15 on the conference.
